We have no patience with the violent assaults which are made upon Hon. Sam'l J. Randall in some quarters, and which seemed to be inspired by an insane intent to hound him out of the Democratic party. To oppose his election for Speaker of the House of Representatives is one thing, and a very proper one for those who are not in accord with him on the tariff question, and can find anin the country under Congressional other man more to their liking—but to assail him with abuse and misrepresentation is quite another. Democracy.

EDITORS CLARION: Democracy is a government by the people. Jefferson says: "Equal and exact justice to all ian and return, at three cents per mile men of whatever state or persuasion -religious or or political-adsolute acquiesence in the decisions of the majority—the vital principle of republics." Thus, in a democratic government the various interests, opinions and desires of the whole people should be pro-portionally represented—that our lawmaking bodies become society in miniature, and our laws the accurate expression of public opinion. Henry George says: "If we would really make and continue this a government of the people for the people, and by the people, we must give to our politics earnest attention; we must be prepared to review representation for Yazoo on the new number of delegates allowed to it in the convention of 1881, which was to to accept new ones. The Chairman stated the object of the meeting to be for the purpose of meeting a delegation of colored citizens who had some proposition to make, looking to the coalescing of the two races in the coming campaign.

The colored committee composed as follows, was received: E. E. Perkins, A. H. Davis, Geo. C. Granberry, Henry Harper, T. S. Johnson, T. J. Johnson, J. J. Williams and Alfred Jameson.

Through their chairman a request was made that certain of the county offices be accorded the colored race, they pledging themselves in turn to support the nominees of the Democratic Convention. After a free consultation their request vas so modified as to embrace the offices of Assessor, two members of the Legislature, Coroner and Ranger and one member of the Board of Supervisors. This was accepted by the Committee, with the understanding that a Conventies of the Democratic-Conservative oters would be called and the matter ubmitted to them for adoption or rejecion-the Supervisor to be taken from such district as may be willing to accord it to the colored race-if one can be

On motion it was determined to hold the Convention on Monday, the 2d of

RAYMOND, May 18, 1883.

At a meeting of the Democratic-Conservative Executive Committee of Hinde county, held on the 14th of May, 1883, for consultation with reference to the approaching general election, the committee was waited on by a delegation of seven colored men, the chosen representatives of a meeting of the colored race assembled in Raymond that day from the several Supervisors Districts of the county. The delegation came in the most respectful manner, and with the view of securing co-operation between the races, and hence a quiet election and entire union and harmony. Aftera free and full interchange of opinions and purposes on the part of the delegation as well as the Democratic Committee, the colored delegation submitted that if the Democratic-Conservative party would allow the colored people to select from their number two Representatives for the Legislature, the Assessor, the Coroner and Ranger, and one Supervis-or, and place such selections on their ticket, the colored people of the county would be satisfied, and, in their opinion, the colored voters, almost in a body, would support the ticket thus formed.

The Democratic Conservative Executive Committee received the proposition favorably, having reason to believe that J. S. KEAPP, D. D. S., R. J. MILLER, D. D. S. it was made in good faith and by the repit was made in good faith and by the representatives of the best element of the colored race of the county; but, having no authority to enter into so important an agreement, although in the interest of peace, good government, and the material interests of the county, agreed to lay it before the Democratic people in convention assembled for their action at as early a day as practicable.
